4 Preacherman comes from two straight gallops and it is admittedly not positive, but this is a horse that impressed during the spring and if he shows the same form now, he should clearly be seen as having the best chance to win of winning the race. 1 Nordic Rain kept up nicely last time, but was even better last time when winning from the lead. Nice draw and is in the fight for victory. 2 Cordouan has done well against tough competition for a long time. Far ahead. 7 Noah Schermer is not that bad and can be enough.

2 Bull's Eyes has not convinced lately but this eight-year-old likes to race under the saddle. Won four starts ago from the lead and from that position he has a good chance to win. 7 Mr Brilliant also likes to compete under the saddle. In the mix here. 5 Gasparito was ahead of Mr Brilliant the last time they met and is one of the better horses in the race. 6 Spectacular is an experienced horse in this discipline, but finds it difficult to win.

2 Con Padre was brave from the lead as second. He is a quick starter and should be seen as the close favorite for the front and could lead the race all the way. Our pick. 6 Amazing Hazel followed well last time and looked also nice the time before with some energy left. Is good enough to be in the mix here. 1 Aramis Face came back after a pause last time and looked clearly improved. Nice draw and is possible here. 10 No Talking You is starting to approach top form and would benefit if the pace in the race is high.

3 Proud scored a nice win last time and looks to improve with each start. Cannot complain about the draw and he should have good chances to lead the race all the way. 4 Olympic Steel held strongly last time from the lead. Hard to get there now, but is still one of the better horses in the race. 1 Stan Wawrinka is not completely reliable. Should he avoid a mistake, he could certainly win the race. 8 Billie Jean P.C. has not won yet, but is in good shape and soon the first victory will come.
